Presenter Katherine Wilson to discuss researching family trees

If you are interested in starting the process of researching your family tree, join us for a special presentation with professional genealogist, Katherine Wilson on October 22 at 6:00 p.m.! In her discussion, she will outline the processes of gathering basic information, locating public records and navigating online resources. If you are interested in beginning your researching journey before the presentation, the Library has access to Ancestry.com through all public computers or devices using the Library's wi-fi connection. For more information about the presentation or the Library's resources, please call or visit the Library Circulation Desk today.
